“I was born and raised in Hong Kong and moved to the UK for university. I never considered moving permanently to the UK, much less a career at the English Bar, until the final year of my undergraduate degree. Applying for pupillage in England (let alone at Fountain Court) seemed an impossibly daunting task. In hindsight, it was a risk well worth taking.

Throughout pupillage and (now) as a tenant, Fountain Court has been nothing but welcoming. Pupillage was an opportunity to learn from different members of Chambers and to work on a variety of live cases across multiple practice areas. It was reassuring to know that if I was ever stumped by a tricky problem, I could always speak to my co-pupils, supervisors and other members – as I still can.

As a junior tenant at Fountain Court, I have been involved in a broad range of matters, including both high-profile, high value cases and smaller, more self-contained disputes. The work is often difficult, but it is also interesting and rewarding. I frequently work with other members, but I also have a real measure of responsibility, both in dealing with clients and managing my practice.”
